

Course: MC2 Tonal Technic

Course Description:

Chiropractic techniques fit into 3 basic models based on the three body systems primarily addressed by chiropractors. Chiropractic intimately involves itself with the skeletal system, the muscle system and the nervous system. Therefore, while all chiropractic techniques involve all three systems, the techniques themselves can be differentiated from one another based on their method of assessment and their method of correction.

Tonal or nervous system centered chiropractic techniques are not muscle or bone based but rather focus on the nervous system and the related changes in a person's physiology. As such, tonal chiropractic techniques look at the nervous system first and the doctor's input into the nervous system then affects the muscle system which, in turn, affects the skeletal system
